

Salmon berries & people Thriving together

Jess Housty is a Haítzaqv mother, writer, and land-based educator living in the community of Bella Bella, B.C. She is the Executive Director of Qqs (Eyes) Projects Society, a Haítcharitable non-profit focused on supporting youth and families to thrive through community and cultural programming. Jess will speak about growing up on the lands and waters of Haítzaqv territory alongside parents who were passionate about justice and land-based learning. She will focus on the deep and reciprocal relationships within Haítzaqv territory and the plant and animal kin that enable the community to thrive.
